

Students participate in NJ Mock elections

About a week before the highly anticipated NJ Gubernatorial Election, students of the West New York School District made their voices heard by participating in the 2009 New Jersey Mock Election, sponsored by the NJ Press Association (NJPA).

The students had the chance to participate in NJ gubernatorial race, and overwhelmingly re-elected Governor Jon Corzine. The race ultimately went to new Governor-elect Christopher Christie.

Among the schools participating this year was the entire Social Studies department of Memorial High School, which was organized by Sandra Santiago and Reynaldo Rivas; the entire Social Studies Team at the WNY Middle School, organized by Darryl Semple; and the student population of Public School #2.

These students participated along with 183 other schools in New Jersey to promote the importance of exercising your right to vote. Over 62,000 students "voted" in the 2009 NJ Mock Election.
