Box Out Bullying Performed at West New York School District

West New York, N.J. – Box Out Productions preformed Box Out Bullying, a research-based, interactive, theatrical, proven-effective bullying prevention assembly program today in West New York, NJ. The district's Kindergarten through fifth grade student body will experience lower level and upper level elementary versions of Box Out Bullying during the rest of this week, through June 3rd.

The three part program includes age-appropriate assembly programs for Elementary, Middle and Junior High School students; comprehensive lesson plans and follow up activities for parents and staff; and a student bullying questionnaire.

"We are thrilled to bring Box Out Bullying to the West New York school district," said Jeremy Rubenstein, President and Creative Director of Box Out Productions, LLC. "We hope empower the students and staff with the knowledge that they have the power to make their school free from bullying."

Today's audiences at PS 5 and PS 2 joined the over 150,000 students in schools across the county who have experienced Box Out Bullying since the start of the 2010-2011 school year. Students at Harry L Bain School, PS 4, PS 1, and PS 3 will enjoy Box Out Bullying performances by the week's end.

"We have taken this program to schools and academic conferences all over the country - from the Northeast Kingdom, Vt. to Harlem, N.Y. to the Smokey and Appalachian Mountains of Crossville, Tenn. and Blacksburg Va." said Rubenstein, an expert in bullying prevention. "We have found that students from all background are facing the same issues that can be solved with the same solutions."

Box Out Productions, a leader in the field of bullying prevention education, provides comprehensive programs which include dynamic live theater performances, parent and faculty workshops, research-based curricula, and follow-up resource materials which offer students, educators, and parents the tools they need to make their communities free from bullying.
