ECS students build an igloo

This cold winter, the boys and girls from Room 10 are safe and sound in our very own class igloo. After reading and learning about winter animals, we spoke about how cold it must feel in the artic and brainstormed different ways to keep warm. The class decided to make an igloo out of white foam plates, and Ms. Yanet helped with the construction of the cool ice house. So if you would ever like to see how it feels to be inside an igloo, come visit our literacy center! We enjoy reading books and playing fun games while we get cozy inside.
