

2009-2010 News

December

- Sending good tidings to our men and women in the armed forces
- Spreading some holiday cheer

Sending good tidings to our men and women in the armed forces

This past week, the students of Harry L. Bain School sent personalized care packages to over 100 soldiers currently stationed in Iraq during the upcoming holiday season. The project was spearheaded by HLB teacher Mrs. Amada Sanjuán, who rallied the student community to participate in this project.

Many of the students have written letters and postcards to these service men and women, which were included in each care package, sending messages of love and appreciation. They were also able to collect several donated goods that are needed in the field, and could be carried in these soldiers' backpacks.

Click here to read Mrs. Sanjuán's thank you letter to all, who participated in this project.

Click here for more photos.

Click here to view an interview with Amada Sanjuan on NY1.

Click here for an interview on Telemundo Ch 47.

