

March 2010 News

- MHS teacher assists General Motors at the National Science Teachers Conference
- Rider University's 7th Annual Teen Leadership Conference welcomed MHS Juniors
- MoMs' reach out: WNY high school students spread love through charities (article as published on the Jersey Journal, March 15, 2010)

MHS teacher assists General Motors at the National Science Teachers Conference

Ron Grossinger the Alternative Fuels teacher at MHS will be assisting General Motors at the National Science Teachers Conference In Philadelphia this week in bringing about Alternative Fuels education in their classrooms. Click here to read more about his plans. Congratulations Mr. Grossinger!

Rider University's 7th Annual Teen Leadership Conference welcomed MHS Juniors

MHS juniors recently attended the 7th Annual Teen Leadership Conference hosted by Rider University. The conference participants were chosen by their teachers Myra Schnur and Sandra Santiago for their leadership qualities. The central themes addressed were human and civil rights and tolerance.

After a performance by actors describing the experience and testimonies of individuals who knew Anne Frank, the students had a chance for Q & A. Following this presentation, the conference participants were divided into discussion groups where they explored the central themes of the conference and how they related those themes to their own lives. Each group was asked to develop an action plan addressing an issue of prime concern to them.

Finally, the conference reconvened with each breakout group sharing the highlights of its findings with the larger group.

Ferne Hassan the organizer of the conference praised the MHS students and has already invited them back for next year's offering!